

IMAGING PATHOLOGICAL CORRELATION

Primary Retroperitoneal Mucinous Cystadenoma in a 52-year-old Man

KKT Lai,¹ YYR Chan,¹ ACW Chin,¹ WF Ng,² YHH Huang,¹ YLM Mak,³ WC Wong¹

¹Department of Radiology, ²Department of Pathology, and ³Department of Surgery, Tseung Kwan O Hospital, Hong Kong

ABSTRACT

A case of primary retroperitoneal mucinous cystadenoma in a male patient is presented. The pathogenesis and computed tomographic imaging features of this rare lesion are briefly discussed. Although it is difficult to make an accurate preoperative diagnosis and to predict the malignant potential of this tumour, imaging is helpful to delineate the lesion and to provide useful information for preoperative assessment.

Key Words: Cystadenoma, mucinous; Male; Retroperitoneal neoplasms; Tomography, X-ray computed